The Charity Commission is clear that safeguarding should be a key governance priority for all charities. This involves both safeguarding the children and vulnerable adults that your staff and volunteers come into contact with in the course of their work, and also safeguarding your staff and volunteers themselves if they are in potentially vulnerable situations. It is essential that your charity has a Safeguarding policy and that it is made meaningful for your team through leadership, culture and practice, as well as your charity staying up to date with the latest legislation and best practice. Our speaker highlights the key elements of an effective safeguarding policy and leads us through how to review your operations in the light of last year's exposés.

Last year, several NHS Trusts appointed the first Fundraiser for their charity. These individuals often face a steep learning curve about how the NHS works and the challenge of raising funds while setting up the necessary governance and policies – all in the face of competition from other charities. How does your Trust move from simply holding charitable funds to employing a charity team and building a brand? We'll find out what structure works best and the level of investment required.
